• School of Theology

School of Theology is an interdenominational institute. Although there are a variety of expressions and worship within Christianity, the School of Theology relies on the authoritative Old and New Testament Scriptures as the basis of its study of theology. The study of theology and faith-based action are inseparable. Theology is empty and fruitless without practice. Just as the biblical writers were engaged in missionary practice, so must all interpreters be. Christianity is not a private religion, but public in nature. Since God is a missionary God, the people of God are a missionary people.
